Introduction

When someone passes away they don't usually leave an Instruction Manual for you to follow.

This booklet is designed to be a companion as you capture and preserve precious memories for your loved ones.

Take time to jot down your special memories to leave for your family once you're gone.

It might just comfort them in their time of sorrow to read your stories and memories; let them smile or even laugh.

In these pages you'll find topics to guide you as you reminisce about your childhood, your significant milestones and the values that shaped your life.

It's a chance to share your memories, your wisdom and to leave behind a piece of your soul – one that your family can treasure forever.

As you fill the pages, remember you are not just recounting events, you are crafting a legacy that will inspire and comfort those who come after you.

Often people say “I don’t want any fuss” or “just cremate me” but saying goodbye, either in a funeral or an informal gathering, is chance for loved ones to gather and celebrate your life.

It’s a time to share stories, reminisce and even laugh a little. By allowing folk to express their emotions and say goodbye, it’s a reminder that we are all in this together, and sharing the grief is such an important part of experiencing grief.

A funeral or gathering plays an essential part in honouring a loved one’s life, providing comfort to those who are left behind and helping everyone to transition from the reality of loss to a new normal.

Celebrating a life well-lived can be just as important as mourning its loss.
